

GARY: head of performance improvement

Gary joined London Youth on 11th April 2007 to take up the newly created post of Head of Performance Improvement. His main task is to run the London Youth Quality Mark Pilot Project, launched in the Summer of 2007 to support member clubs achieve a series of quality standards for good practice in the field of youth work.

Previous to that he worked for the John Lewis Partnership, joining from school as a Management trainee. During a 20 year career he worked at a number of branches as a manager in various roles before joining the IT function as an Analyst.

When not working or volunteering his main interest is Tai Chi, which he helps teach at the John Ding Academy located at Limehouse.

To contact Gary email gary.hartin@londonyouth.org.uk